GRADE : X

DATE OF VISIT : 20.06.2025

NO OF STUDENTS : 55

NO OF STAFF : 5

As part of the experiential learning initiative, a one-day educational field visit was organized for the Grade X students to Ooty. The itinerary included three major scientific and industrial centers: The Tata Institute of Fundamental Research (TIFR) – Cosmic Ray Laboratory, the Radio Astronomy Centre, and the Doddabetta Tea Factory and Tea Museum, chocolate factory. The trip provided a rich learning experience by exposing students to both cutting-edge scientific research and large-scale industrial processes.

1. Tata Institute of Fundamental Research (TIFR) – Cosmic Ray Laboratory

The first visit was the Cosmic Ray Laboratory at TIFR, a prestigious Indian research institute established in 1945 by Dr. Homi Bhabha with support from the Sir Dorabji Tata Trust.

TIFR operates under the Department of Atomic Energy and is renowned for its work in fundamental sciences including mathematics, physics, biology, and chemistry. The institute's interdisciplinary approach and lack of departmental divisions make it a unique center for scientific learning and innovation.

At the laboratory, a resident scientist explained key concepts related to cosmic rays, supernova explosions, and subatomic particles such as photons and muons. Students were then taken to the Muon Telescope Centre, where they were introduced to its working principles and its role in detecting secondary particles resulting from cosmic ray interactions.

The session highlighted the research legacy that began in 1955 under B.V. Sreekantan, initially using cloud chambers to study cosmic rays. Over time, this evolved into sophisticated experiments on high-energy particle interactions. The visit helped students understand the scientific techniques used to explore cosmic phenomena and their broader astrophysical significance.

2. Radio Astronomy Centre – Ooty Radio Telescope (ORT)

The next destination was the Ooty Radio Telescope (ORT), located in Muthurai near Ooty. The telescope's unique design was finalized in 1963, leveraging the geographic and geomagnetic advantages of the site. Construction began in 1965, and the telescope became fully operational in 1971.

The ORT is a landmark in India's space research history. In 1992, it underwent significant technological upgrades, including the implementation of phased array feeds and GaAsFET low-noise amplifiers, which greatly improved its sensitivity. In 2017, the telescope was further transformed into the Ooty Wide Field Array (OWFA)-a 264-element interferometric array that now contributes to advanced research in heliospheric physics, 21 cm intensity mapping, and transient radio phenomena.

During the visit, students toured the facility, observed the telescope's operational mechanisms, and learned about its historical and scientific significance. They were captivated by the idea of detecting and interpreting radio waves from distant celestial bodies to better understand the universe. A video presentation further enhanced their grasp of these complex concepts.

3.Doddabetta Tea Factory, Tea Museum & Chocolate Factory

The final stop was the Doddabetta Tea Factory and Tea Museum, located at an altitude of 1,839 meters on Doddabetta Road. This segment of the tour offered a fascinating look into the industrial process of tea production—an important economic activity in the Nilgiris.

Students witnessed the entire tea manufacturing process, from plucking tea leaves to drying and packaging. They were also introduced to the CTC (Cutting, Twisting, Curling) method of tea processing. The Tea Museum presented the rich history of tea in India, particularly in the Nilgiris, and showcased both traditional and modern machinery used for withering, rolling, fermenting, drying, and sifting the tea leaves.

After the informative tour, students were given the opportunity to purchase factory-made chocolates and other products. They concluded their visit by enjoying the drizzling evening view of Thoottabetta, which added a refreshing and scenic finish to the day.

The field trip provided an enriching blend of scientific exploration and industrial understanding. Students gained firsthand insights into cosmic ray physics and radio astronomy, while also developing an appreciation for the intricate processes involved in tea production. This experience not only deepened their academic knowledge but also sparked a greater curiosity about science and industry in India.

Day 1:

Grade XI and XII management students were taken to a field visit to Thalavady farm land on 20th June 2025. Thalavadi is a hilly taluk in Erode district, Tamil Nadu, adjoining the Karnataka border. It lies within the Eastern Ghats, near the confluence of Western and Eastern Ghats and the Sathyamangalam Tiger Reserve. Thalavadi enjoys a moderate climate and experiences mixed cropping systems that include coffee, pepper, black plum, gooseberry, banana, and various vegetables like broad beans, bitter melon, ivy gourd. On the farm, students examined varied agricultural practices, noting the use of drip irrigation, borewell systems, and multi-crop farming strategies adapted to the area's rocky, forest-adjacent landscapes. They also observed conservation efforts where villagers worked to mitigate wildlife conflict, such as elephant and tiger incursions. The vegetables were mainly taken to Erode and to markets in Trissur and Cochin.

The students also visited Namdhari Seeds Pvt Ltd which was established in 1985. Their journey began with contract seed production for various nations across the globe, their successes driven them to research into developing hybrid crops, pioneering hybrid seed production in India. Today, they produce hybrid seeds that prioritize adaptability, disease resistance and superior consumer appeal.

From a management perspective, students evaluated the strengths—rich biodiversity, community cooperation, and crop variety—and identified significant weaknesses such as unreliable water access, fragmented road infrastructure, and wildlife-related risks.

The Thalavadi field visit presented a comprehensive learning platform—where management principles intersect with environmental stewardship and rural dynamics. Students gained first-hand exposure to real-world challenges, from handling operational risks and supply-chain planning to navigating multi-stakeholder relationships in border agro-ecosystems.

Day 2:

The next day (21.06.25) students had the opportunity to explore some of the city's most iconic attractions, each offering a unique experience. Students first stop was the Mysore Zoo, one of the oldest and well-maintained zoos in India. It was home to a wide variety of animals, including endangered species, and offered an educational experience about wildlife conservation. Walking through the lush greenery of the zoo, students encountered lions, tigers, elephants, and many exotic birds.

The next place of visit was Chamundeshwari Temple by students proved to be both educational and spiritually enriching. Situated atop the Chamundi Hill in Mysore, the temple is dedicated to Goddess Chamundeshwari, an incarnation of Goddess Durga.

Next we visited St. Philomena's Church, one of the largest churches in India. The neo-gothic architecture, with its towering spires and beautiful stained glass windows, was awe-inspiring. The peaceful ambiance inside the church provided a serene contrast to the liveliness of the other attractions.

Late in the afternoon the students visited Mysore Palace, a magnificent structure known for its Indo-Saracenic architecture. Inside, the grand Durbar Hall, royal rooms, and intricate carvings reflected the opulence of the Wodeyar dynasty.

Lastly, in the evening, we traveled to Brindavan Gardens, about 30 km from Mysore, known for its sprawling layout and stunning illuminated fountains. The highlight of the visit was the laser light show, which brought the fountains to life with synchronized lights and music. It was a magical experience, and the vibrant colors against the night sky made it even more memorable.

Altogether, the trip to Mysore was an unforgettable journey, offering a perfect blend of history, culture, nature, and spirituality.
