Vision & Mission

PSG PUBLIC SCHOOLS, COIMBATORE, aims to educate its children to have such an understanding that they will give no offence to others, shine fulfilling the highest ideas of which they are capable. They should appreciate the difference between right and wrong, and be familiar with the accepted social and moral codes of behaviour. They have a most hearty contempt for all the sneak - their vices, such as cheating, pilfering, tale bearing and petty revenge, and have made up their minds, that they will be happier telling the truth and suffering than telling lies and going scot-free. They should be prepared to resist the yoke of superstition and custom, to use their own initiative, and to accept discipline, responsibility and leadership. They should outgrow the fear of unpopularity or maintaining independent opinion. They should have increasing opportunities, as they grow older, to take charge, to organize, to act on their own and, in consequence, to make mistakes and learn from them.

They should know that education cannot be divorced from standards of social behaviour. Their good manners should be as reliable in the company of their inferiors as of their superiors and equals. They should feel quite with strangers, both men and women, and be able to take part in an intelligent conversation without shyness or aggression. They should find happiness in good fellowship and friendliness, and while slow to make friends, should be slower still to make enemies. They should have their temper and emotions under control but never be afraid of righteous anger. They should form a stronger resolve to serve their country and their fellow men and women, both in their daily work and some of their spare time. They should have at least an elementary understanding of social, political and economic problems of their own country. They should believe that some work for the welfare of the poor and some share in the duties of the good citizens are obligatory on every self-respecting men and women.

They should be accustomed to live simply, should see nothing derogatory in dirtying their hands, should enjoy physical effort, adventure and a spice of danger, and pride themselves on being able to look after themselves. They should learn the value of money, and be able to live within their income and be competent to deal with a bill, cheque, money-order or pass-book.

They should have the habit of reading widely for themselves both for information and pleasure and should know how to take notes of their reading and how to extract information from a reference library. They should also be in the habit of reading a daily newspaper, framing their own judgements, distrusting second hand opinions and not taking for gospel everything in print. They should be able to speak and write equally fluent in our national language, in English and mother-tongue. They should learn how to learn and have a desire to go on learning, and be able to do a good deal of solid work without a teacher always at their side.

They should develop artistic talent of any kind which they may possess. But whether they have such a talent or not, they should be trained to appreciate natural beauty, to criticize the art and design of others, and form a cultural taste.

They should be able to play games, to ride, swim and run in order to develop the virtues of courage, unselfishness, and good sportsmanship to win co-ordination between mind and body and to possess healthy form of recreation for their leisure hours. They should know how to win and keep good health and should be sensibly but frankly instructed in all matters of personal and public hygiene.

They should be able to make good use of their leisure and possess resources for their own amusement and pleasure whether alone or in the company of their friends. They should have no cause to feel bored either by themselves or with others if cut off from urban entertainments and comforts. They should have sufficient inexpensive hobbies, as will interest them in every likely situation in which they may find themselves.

Finally, they should have a healthy sense of the richness of the country's past history, the heritage of splendor and greatness into which they have entered, and they should resolve that their lives shall be devoted to her service and do the service to their fellow men and women. And if, when the time comes for them to leave, they can claim to have achieved more than a few of those ideals, they will be able to look back with pride and affection to the years of their schooling, and send them out with loyalty than the production of such men and women for the services of India and her people.

EXAMS AND ASSESSMENTS

CONTINUOUS AND COMPREHENSIVE EVALUATION (CCE) refers to a system of school based evaluation of students that covers all aspects of students development.

External examinations are largely inappropriate for the 'knowledge society' of the 21st century and it's need for innovative problem solvers', questions if not framed well, "call for rote memorization fail to test higher-order skills like reasoning and analysis, lateral thinking, creativity and judgement. External exams make no allowance for different types of learners and learning environments and induce an in-ordinate level of anxiety and stress".

(National curriculum framework – position paper on Examination Reforms)

The Central Board of Secondary Education, New Delhi has also perceived these flaws in our educational systems and brought necessary reforms in its curriculum and evaluation through the Continuous and Comprehensive Evaluation (CCE) since end of last year.

In order to improve the teaching learning process, assessment should be both Periodic Assessment and Term Exams.

The "Continuous" aspect of CCE takes care of 'periodicity' aspect of evaluation. Continual means assessment of students in the beginning of instructions (placement evaluation) and assessment during the instructional process (Periodic Assessment) done informally using multiple techniques of evaluation.

Periodicity means assessment of performance done frequently at the end of unit/term (Term Exams). The “Comprehensive” component of CCE takes care of assessment of all round development of the child’s personality. It includes assessment in ‘Scholastic’ as well as ‘Co-Scholastic’ aspects of the pupil’s growth.

Scholastic aspect includes curricular areas or subject specific areas, whereas Co-Scholastic aspects include Life Skills, Co-Curricular, Attitudes and Values.

There will be two exams made in a year, Term 1 exam ending in the month of September and Term 2 exam ending in the month of March.

Bimonthly test will be conducted for Grades III - V and the answer scripts will be evaluated and grades will be given.

Students of grades I & II will be assessed on the progress they make in the class and on their performance in the continuous and comprehensive evaluation. Parents will receive their children's progress report twice a year. There will be more reports in higher classes.

Students of grades I to V would normally be promoted to next class unless their attendance of the year has been less than 80 percent and / or their progress during this year in the scholastic areas has not been satisfactory.

1. Our Land, Our Future

Our Land, Our Future

Our land is our treasure. It gives us food, water, and life. If we care for it today, it will care for us tomorrow. Planting trees, saving water, and keeping our surroundings clean help protect our land. Let's all work together for a better future—because our land is our responsibility!

The future of our planet depends on how we treat our land today. Forests, rivers, soil, and air are not just resources—they are life itself. With increasing pollution and careless use of natural wealth, we risk destroying the world we depend on. It is our duty as students and citizens to protect our land by adopting sustainable practices.

Let's recycle, conserve, and respect nature — because our land is our future.

2. SAVE FOREST

Our forests are like the Earth's lungs, giving us clean air, water, and food. Many plants and animals live there, so forests are super important for us to live. But sadly, people are cutting down too many trees, which is called deforestation. This hurts our Earth by changing the weather, washing away soil, and making animals and plants disappear. We need to help save our forests! We can use less paper, plant new trees, and help groups that protect forests. You can plant a tree, use less paper, recycle paper, and support those groups. Also, tell your friends and family why forests are important. In India, there's a special celebration called Van Mahotsav, the Festival of Forests! We celebrate it in the first week of July every year.

3. CLEAN AIR, BREATH EASY

Clean air is important for our health and well-being. It helps us breathe better and stay free from diseases like asthma and allergies.

Trees and plants play a big role in keeping the air clean. We can reduce air pollution by walking, cycling, or using public transport. Let's all work together to protect the air so everyone can breathe easy and live healthy.

4. IMPACTS OF GLOBAL WARMING AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Global warming is the term used to describe the gradual rise in the Earth's average surface temperature.

This increase is mostly due to human activity.

Global warming has wide ranging impact on the planet.

These include:

- Rising sea levels due to melting polar ice and glaciers.
- More extreme weather events, such as hurricanes, heat waves and floods.
- Ecosystem disruptions, leading to species extinction and habitat loss.
- Threats to human health through increased heat related illness and the spread of diseases.

These effects have an impact on the environment and human societies. It requires coordinated global efforts to reduce emissions, adapt to changes, and transition to sustainable ways of living

5. REDUCE FOOD WASTE :EAT SMART

Check your pantry and fridge:

Before going shopping, check what you already have on hand to avoid duplicating purchases.

Shop seasonally and locally:

Local produce is often fresher and in season, reducing the need for long-distance transportation and potential spoilage.

Organize your fridge:

Organize your refrigerator to ensure that foods with shorter shelf lives are easily visible and used first.

Eat leftovers:

Don't let leftovers go to waste. Use them in new meals or freeze portions for later.

Compost food scraps:

Compost vegetable peels, coffee grounds, and other organic waste to enrich your soil and reduce landfill waste.

Freeze food:

Freeze portions of meals or ingredients that you won't use immediately.

Donate to food banks:

Donate surplus food, especially non-perishable items, to local food banks, shelters, or charities.

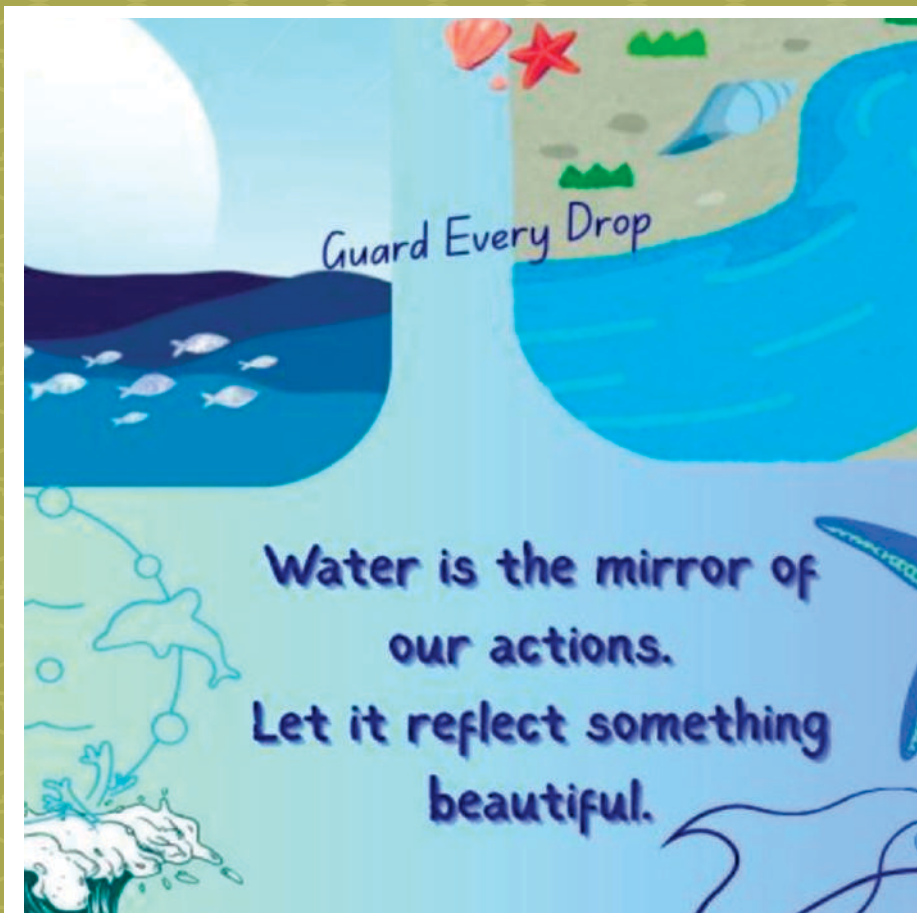

Ask for smaller portions: When eating out, consider asking for smaller portions to avoid plate waste.

Avoid serving too much: Be mindful of portion sizes when cooking at home to prevent leftovers.

6. PROTECT OUR WATER BODIES

Let's cherish our beautiful rivers, lakes, and oceans by being mindful of what we put into them and around their edges. Imagine the difference we can make by choosing eco-friendly practices at home and on the farm, allowing nature to work its magic in keeping the waters clean. Every drop we save is a gift to these precious places, ensuring they thrive for generations to come. By joining hands in caring for our water, and by encouraging strong rules to protect them, we become guardians of these life-giving resources. Together, we can ensure these sparkling waters continue to nourish and inspire us all.

7. BIODIVERSITY MATTERS..PROTECT OUR ECOSYSTEM

Biodiversity:

The variety of life on Earth, is the foundation upon which ecosystems thrive.

Understanding why every species matters and how we can protect them is vital for maintaining the health of our planet and ensuring a sustainable future for all.

•Biodiversity Matters

•Biodiversity is crucial for a healthy planet.

•Supports ecosystem services: Biodiversity maintains essential services like air and water purification, soil formation, and climate regulation.

•Provides food security: Biodiverse ecosystems ensure a stable food supply and promote sustainable agriculture.

•Offers medicinal benefits: Many medicines are derived from diverse plant and animal species.

•Enhances resilience: Diverse ecosystems are better equipped to withstand climate change, diseases, and natural disasters.

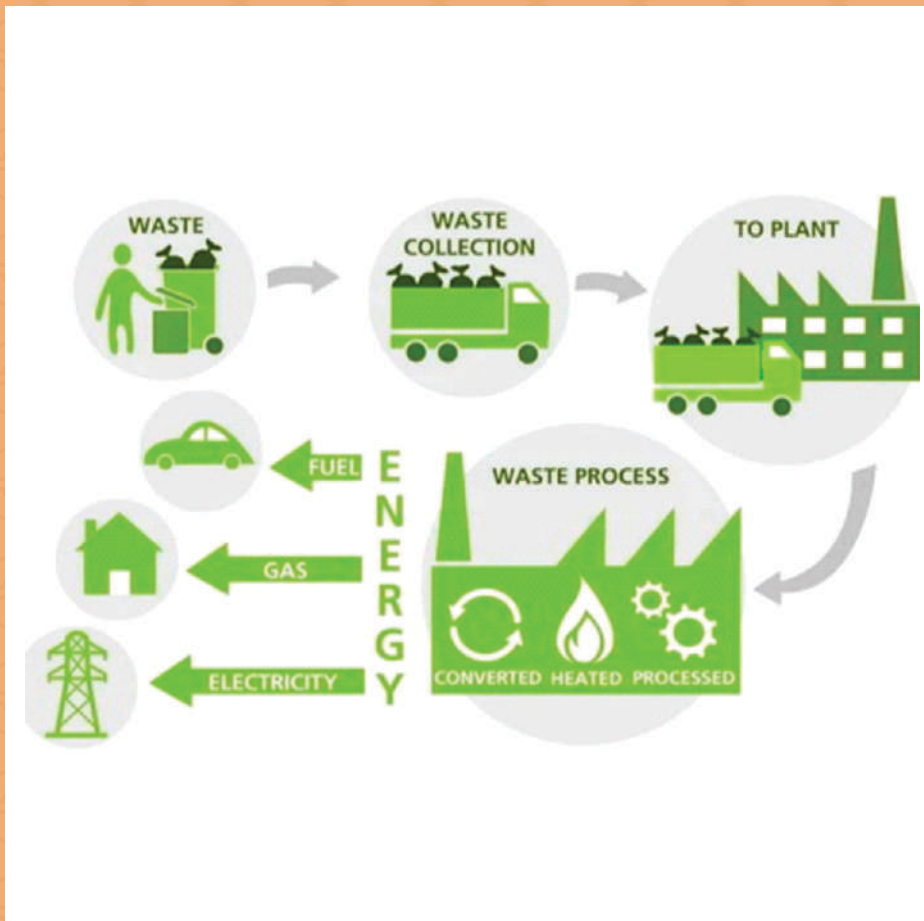

•Supports human well-being: Biodiversity contributes to mental and physical health, cultural identity, and recreational opportunities.

Let's work together to protect and preserve biodiversity for future generations!

8. REDUCE...REUSE...RECYCLE

1. Reduce

Use less of things that can become waste.

Example: Don't waste paper or water.

2. Reuse

Use things again instead of throwing them away.

Example: Use both sides of paper, or turn old jars into pen holders.

3. Recycle

Turn old things into new things.

Example: Recycle plastic bottles or newspapers so they can be made into new items

Why it's important?

It helps keep the Earth clean and happy!

Why we follow the 3 R's?

To save our natural resources, reduce pollution, and protect animals and nature.

Renewable energy is created through the use of naturally occurring resources that replenish themselves over time. So, although there's not an unlimited amount of these resources available at any one moment, you'll almost never have to worry about a renewable resource running out entirely. And since renewable energy produces fewer greenhouse gases and pollutants than traditional fossil fuels, they can help to make your home more sustainable.

9. CELEBRATE OUR PLANET

Earth is the only planet that supports life. It's unique and the only place that we got. If we can't protect it, it will endanger our own existence. Life on Earth is dependent on several things. Land, water, soil, forests, air are all necessary for the survival of life on Earth. But rapid industrialization, unchecked consumption of natural resources, deforestation, pollution, climate changes, etc., has caused severe damage to the Earth's ecosystem. Mother Nature has sufficient to provide for us all; however, irresponsible excavation of its resources has led to a drastic loss its biodiversity and poisoned its land, water bodies and atmosphere. We have to understand that without the good health of Mother Nature, we won't survive too.
